

Petrified Wood Park

500 Main Street
Lemmon, SD
Perkins County

When life hands you lemons, do what the people of Lemmon did and build yourself a petrified wood park. The park was constructed during the Great Depression out of petrified wood, grass and cannonball boulders. The park's original intention was to put citizens to work during the Great Depression, but it is now considered folk art.

Turn north off of Highway 12 onto Main Street and you'll drive right to it.
